To the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Warwick.

ARE you, Gentlemen, become the mere Inſtruments of a few confident Men, who, puffed up by the Vanity of their own Importance, ſeem determined to ſend whom they pleaſe to Parliament?

Mr. ADDERLEY, perhaps, has not been fortunate enough to pay his Court to the dictating Junto.

Theſe modeſt Gentlemen have publiſhed an anonymous Hand Bill, beginning with "Whereas it has been diſcovered that ſome People have dared to canvaſs the Town," that is to ſay, without our Conſent.

What an abominable Crime, that the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Warwick, ſhould be capable of thinking for themſelves!!!

It is hoped, however, that Gentlemen will exerciſe an Opinion of their own, and by affording Mr. ADDERLEY ſufficient Support, convince aſſuming Impertinence that the Electors of Warwickſhire are capable of chooſing a Repreſentative for themſelves.

A FREEHOLDER.
